ARCHITECT: Unknown

BUILDER: Unknown

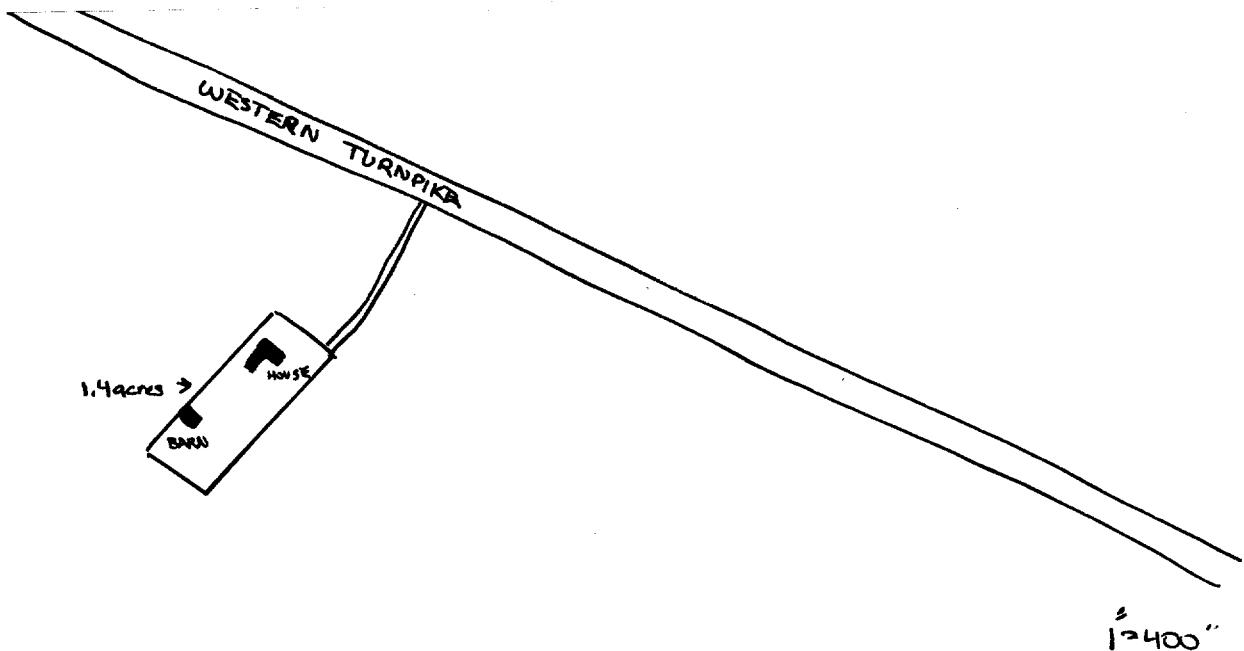

20. HISTORICAL AND ARCHITECTURAL IMPORTANCE:

The farmhouse, like the one at 3858 Western Turnpike, is believed to have been built for members of the prominent Veeder family. The attention given to detail in this rural building reflects the prosperity of the family. The window and door lintels, with raised keystone and brick-like wood moulds, are unusual and particularly significant on an isolated, rural farmhouse such as this. The recessed front door with sidelights, transom, and Doric pilasters, and the cornice returns reflect Greek Revival stylistic influence. The building is one of only two early nineteenth century houses built along the Western Turnpike on the outer fringes of the town. It has survived among modern tract development and exhibits considerable architectural significance relative to such surroundings.
